Designed by Richard Bullet, the fitout for the Pacific Catch fish shop has a contemporary décor that displays the products to their best advantage. Beginning with a concrete shell, Amstar interiors carried out the entire fitout, creating a modern retail environment where the refrigerated display units take centre stage.

A feature is a suspended stained-ply panelled ceiling housing random strip lighting, with spots illuminating the displays.

A challenge to configure, this ceiling conceals the services needed to keep the shop running. Another important element was the laying of the resin floor. It contains floor channels that allow the shop to be easily hosed down at night.
