Five years after doing Tramco's head office fitout, Amstar was asked to collaborate with Walker Interiors to extend of Tramco's office space into an adjacent building.

Starting with an empty shell, Walker interiors and Amstar Interiors worked together to create a timeless and functional environment for the Tramco staff. The main feature of the space is a central filing area that is concealed behind the main reception wall. This houses the majority of the company's files and also opens up the workstation area. The result is that both the private offices and the open-plan work area enjoys the feeling of looking onto the Viaduct Harbour.
